PRESIDENT AGAIN IGNORES SENATOR'S URGING

End of Spanish Civil War is Believed Near

REBELS ARE OFFERED NEW PEACE TERMS

British Relay Details After Insurgents Take Island

London, Feb. 9.—(AP)—Great Britain was reported reliably today to have taken new peace terms from the Spanish government to the insurgents after the latter had landed forces on the Balearic island of Minorca.

The landing of the strategic island was said to have developed an uprising of Spanish government troops who gained mastery over a large part of its area.

The announcement said the insurgents landed at Ciudadela, on the west coast of Minorca, and were joined by units of the local garrison which had risen against the government authorities.

The insurgent landing occurred after the departure of the British cruiser Devonshire from the island, where she had been sent to help negotiate a surrender.

Ask Clemency

The new peace terms reported offered by Dr. Juan Negrin, Spanish government premier now in France, centered mainly on clemency for his followers.

From Burgos, insurgent capital, word came at the same time that Generalissimo Francisco Franco, while still demanding an unconditional surrender by his foe, promised there would be no reprisals and that only those accused of crimes would be tried.

REACH FRENCH BORDER

Le Perthus, French-Spanish border, Feb. 9.—(AP)—Insurgent Generalissimo Francisco Franco's troops, conquerors of Catalonia, reached the French-Spanish border at Le Perthus at 2:05 P. M. (8:05 A. M. C. S.T.) today and planted their flag at the Spanish side of the boundary.

Just two hours earlier the Spanish government premier, Dr. Juan Negrin, had left his house in Le Perthus, a foot from the French border, and entered France.

The insurgent troops occupying the Spanish part of Le Perthus included Falangists and Carlists from Pamplona.

They were commanded by a brother of Juan Ignacio Pombo, who flew across the Atlantic from Spain to Mexico in 1935.

News From Troubled Countries Briefly Told by AP

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Spanish Insurgents, conquerors of Catalonia, reached the French-Spanish frontier today as government officials abandoned the island of Minorca, apparently a sign of surrender there to Generalissimo Francisco Franco's forces.

In Paris, an informant close to the French foreign office said the French government considered that the Republican government of Spain was "no longer in existence" since government Premier Juan Negrin entered France yesterday.

Great Britain was reported reliably to have taken new peace terms from the insurgents after the latter landed forces on Minorca.

Supporters of Spanish government Premier Juan Negrin and General Jose Mijia, government commander in central Spain, said they were determined to continue fighting.

Franco's forces planted their flag on the Spanish side of the boundary, at 2:05 P. M. (8:05 A. M. C. S.T.).

It was the goal of a great offensive which the insurgents launched last Dec. 23 and which had wiped out the last government resistance from northern Spain.

Franco began withdrawal of large forces from Catalonia, conquest of which was almost complete, in preparation for a drive against Mijia's zone.

British officials in London said that 450 "refugees," presumably government officials and "other persons wanted by the insurgents," had left Minorca on the British cruiser Devonshire.

In Paris, the French government was understood to have tried to urge on the defenders of Madrid the futility of further resistance in the one-fourth of Spain they still hold. Officials and press reflected hope that peace might come quickly.

More fuel for Europe's rearmament race was promised in Rome as the Italian answer to British-French solidarity. The foreign office bulletin, Informazione Diplomatica, said Italy's intention to "speed up and perfect" her armaments would balance a "real French-English military alliance."

Mrs. E. E. Gibson Died in Sister's Home Today

Word was received here today of the passing of Mrs. E. E. Gibson, former well known Dixon resident, whose death occurred at the home of her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Brooks at Sedalia, Mo. She had been ill but one month. Short funeral services will be conducted at Sedalia Friday and the body will arrive in Dixon Saturday evening and will be taken to the Jones funeral home where funeral services will be conducted Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock, the Rev. Herbert J. Doran, pastor of the First Presbyterian church officiating and with interment in Oakwood.

Dollars have never been able to do quite so much as they'll accomplish during this two-day merchandising event, which may be regarded as the merchants' own special valentine to everyone within the Dixon trade area. Bargains which will not be equalled again this winter, it is announced, will be offered thousands of eager shoppers from throughout Lee county and beyond.

At times in the past, merchants have sponsored a one-day sale only, but this week, an additional bargain day has been added for the greater convenience of those who in the past have been unable to shop on the single day designated.

Merchants have augmented their sales forces with additional clerks in order to take care of the large crowds. New stocks have been placed on display in show windows and on shelves, as firms participating look forward to two days of the greatest business they have enjoyed in months.

Three Victims of Anti-Semitic Campaign in Germany, Arrive in Dixon

Mr. and Mrs. Gustav Kahn and the latter's ten-year-old son Gunther Herzog, recent arrivals in Dixon, are victims of Adolf Hitler's anti-Semitic drive in Germany. Mrs. Kahn is the mother of Fritz Herzog, assistant manager at the Kline department store, and with her husband and son, abandoned a business at Worrstadt, in southwestern Germany and succeeded in escaping from the country, departing only ten days before the last attack by the storm troopers. Abandoning their business and properties at Worrstadt they gathered together only a few of their personal effects and fled from Germany together and were able to reach the United

SEARCH SEAS FOR CREW OF SUNKEN SHIP

Wreckage of British Freighter Found on Atlantic

Chatham, Mass., Feb. 9.—(AP)—Apparently convinced the British freighter Maria De Larrinaga had foundered, rescue vessels today searched the stormy North Atlantic for life boats in the hope of finding her crew of 37 alive.

Late messages received by the Radiomarine station here advised that two of the rescue ships were steaming through wreckage-strewn waters, about 1200 miles east of New York, from which position the De Larrinaga yesterday reported she was sinking.

Several physicians, including Dr. Filippo Rocchi, attended the Aurania, after describing wreckage, added she "still had hope we will sight life boats."

The Holland American liner Veendam reported that she had come upon floating ladders and a table top, but had seen no boats.

Messages Relayed

Both messages were relayed to the Radiomarine station by the American steamer Scammon, which was participating in the search.

British officials in London said that 450 "refugees," presumably government officials and "other persons wanted by the insurgents," had left Minorca on the British cruiser Devonshire.

In Paris, the French government was understood to have tried to urge on the defenders of Madrid the futility of further resistance in the one-fourth of Spain they still hold. Officials and press reflected hope that peace might come quickly.

Found No Trace

Previously the Holland-American vessel Veendam reported it had reached the scene but could find no trace of the freighter or its crew of 37. The De Larrinaga's radio has been silent almost 15 hours since reporting its No. 1 bulkhead which had been stove in, was holding and the sea decreasing.

It appeared from the Aurania's message that it had begun cruising the vicinity, possibly accounting for the difference of approximately 70 miles between the position reported in its message and that given in distress call from the freighter. Mariners ashore also pointed out that thick weather might have made observations inaccurate.

Also at the scene was the American Scantic liner, Scammon, who reported a northwest gale and mountainous seas in the vicinity. That vessel said it was snowing and visibility was cut to half a mile.

Pope Pius Unconscious an Hour Following Attack of Cardiac Asthma this Morn

Pontiff's Weak Heart Cause of Grave Concern Today

Vatican City, Feb. 9.—(AP)—A Vatican news service said tonight that Pope Pius had suffered an attack of cardiac asthma and was unconscious for more than an hour.

Physicians in attendance administered restoratives which brought him back to consciousness, the service said.

After the attack, which occurred this evening, His Holiness was reported "improved and resting tranquilly."

The service a short time earlier had reported that the Pontiff had taken "a slight turn for the worse." It gave no details but other sources familiar with his condition said an attack of influenza had developed into bronchial pneumonia.

Several physicians, including Dr. Filippo Rocchi, attended the Aurania, after describing wreckage, added she "still had hope we will sight life boats."

The Holland American liner Veendam reported that she had come upon floating ladders and a table top, but had seen no boats.

Causes Serious Concern

Several doctors were understood to be in constant attendance at his bedside.

The reported aggravation of his illness caused serious concern because of his weak heart.

The 81-year-old Pontiff suffered a mild attack of influenza two days ago.

He collapsed with a heart attack Nov. 25 but resumed his regular heavy schedule of audiences on Dec. 3.

Two Hungarian Spies Hanged in Budapest

Budapest, Feb. 9.—(AP)—Two Hungarians convicted of "spying for a neighboring state" were hanged this morning in the courtyard of the Budapest military court.

They were Tibor Loewy, 38, an innkeeper from Satoraljaoujhely on the Czechoslovak border, and Janos Keresztesi, 36, a former body guard.

Confidences with President Roosevelt, Secretary Hull, Secretary Morgenthau and other officials are on his program.

They will embrace topics reported to include backing the national bank in Brazil with United States gold, improvement of trade relations between the two countries, an arrangement for the foreign sale of cotton abroad, and considerations of national defense.

Hull ascribed chief importance to the increase of trade with Brazil, and referred to other topics as minor matters.

Illini are Outnumbered in Altamont Schools

Effingham, Ill., Feb. 9.—(AP)—Children of oil workers from other states now outnumber natives of Illinois in the public schools at Altamont, near the eastern Fayette county oil fields.

The total enrollment of the schools is 311 which included 135 Illinoisans. Oklahoma is represented by 101, Texas by 27, Kansas by 26, and the other states represented included Missouri, Indiana, California, Kentucky, Louisiana, South Dakota, West Virginia, Iowa, Mississippi and Arkansas.

The fire department was called at 8:15 and extinguished the small blaze which caused a minimum amount of damage.

The service a short time earlier had reported that the Pontiff had taken "a slight turn for the worse." It gave no details but other sources familiar with his condition said an attack of influenza had developed into bronchial pneumonia.

It also was considered unlikely that the Pope would attend Sunday's pontifical mass at St. Peter's to inaugurate the 18th year of his pontificate.

Many of the Italian prelates, learning of the seriousness of the Holy Father's condition on their arrival at Rome in response to his summons, participated in prayers for him at various churches of the city.

The Pope personnel gathered at Pauline chapel to pray for him.

The Holy Father's condition was reported to have taken a turn for the worse during the day after Vatican sources in the morning had described it as unchanged since yesterday.

NATION'S GREAT NEED IS LARGER ARMY AIR CORPS

Chief of Corps Calls Attention to Feverish Armament Race

Los Angeles, Feb. 9.—(AP)—An air force which will adequately defend continental United States and the Panama Canal Zone, in view of a plane building race abroad "more feverish than anything which has yet occurred in naval or land armament," was held up today by Maj. Gen. Henry H. Arnold, chief of the Army Air Corps, as the nation's greatest military need.

For the first time since the army's new aerial armament program was submitted to congress, Gen. Arnold discussed it in detail last night before a meeting of the Los Angeles post of the Army Ordnance Association.

Emphasizing that it will require two years to complete the program, he said it must be designed for effectiveness at that time, adding:

Competent Engineers

"And it can be done. Our aeronautical engineers are equal to, if not better, than those of any other nation in the world."

He blamed limited research activities for a "slip backwards" from America's preeminent position in the aviation world a few years ago, with the result that "other nations have produced military airplanes with marked superiority in performance."

To remedy this, he disclosed plans for additional research facilities at the army's experimental station at Wright Field, Ohio.

As for production, Arnold said he expected the program "to take advantage of the good points and eliminate the bad points" of the European systems.

Only 30,000 Employed

"Our total aircraft industry today employs less than 30,000 men in the direct labor of manufacturing airplanes," he declared. "We have reliable information that one aircraft plant in Germany has a payroll in excess of 50,000 men."

Outlining the government's program, Arnold said it called for 5,500 ships, of which only 3,300 would be in service at one time, and two new air bases in the United States, with one each in Panama, Puerto Rico and Alaska.

The problem of training pilots and mechanics, he said, will be carried on by 14 schools accredited by the Civil Aeronautics Authority, by which "we will be able to double or triple our present output of pilots."

EUROPEAN FORCES GREAT

New York, Feb. 9.—(AP)—Intensive training programs occasioned by the threat of war are expected to provide Europe's five major powers with regular and reserve air forces totalling some 700,000 men by the end of 1939.

That is more than four times the authorized enlisted strength of the entire United States Army.

A survey of these European programs today produced round figures for the respective countries:

Italy—10,000 pilots and a reserve (pilots, mechanics, radio technicians, etc.) of 120,000.

France—A goal of an enlisted and officer strength in the air corps of 86,000 by the close of the year.

Great Britain—A goal of an enlisted and officer strength of 100,000 in the Royal Air Force by June.

Germany—A total force, flying and non-flying, of at least 100,000 men, and a reserve of at least that many more, thousands of whom have qualified as pilots.

Italy, Germany and Russia have the most comprehensive air training programs, and their air force personnel is drawn from a reservoir of youngsters who are taught the rudiments of aeronautics when, or before, they reach their 'teens.'

Neither Great Britain nor France have anything to compare with the air education programs for the youth of those three nations.

In New York

BY GEORGE ROSS

New York—In a fortnight we will keep a midnight-to-noon date at the Russian Kretchma. The occasion will be a Gypsy Revelry, an annual celebration at this Moscovite retreat where candles of varied hues provide light and splash a rainbow of color shadows against the walls.

We have a personal stake in these gypsy revelries, for we once aided in rounding up the vagabonds of old Russia with the Kretchma's host.

He is Peter Nemirov, a turbulent emigre from pre-Soviet Russia, who has been the Kretchma's mentor for fifteen years.

He asked us to go with him one night and corral the gypsies. Skeptical that there were such creatures left in Manhattan, we tagged along and taxied down to Broome street on the lower East Side. There Nemirov led us into a draggled-down, little pub where beer was five cents a glass and the free lunch went with it.

He beckoned to Mischa the bartender, and bade him sit down with his accordion and sing for us. Which Mischa—a burly six-foot Muscovite—did and we rarely have heard such folk-singing.

"Tell your friends to be at the Kretchma next Thursday night," Nemirov invited the swarthy-skinned bartender. And when we arrived at the Kretchma that appointed evening, there were two dozen expatriated gypsies, male and female, down there. They were singing and dancing, much as Mischa did for us.

They came from East Side pubs, hotels and bakeshops and they were recreating for themselves on the Kretchma's dance floor, old, vivid nights on the white steppes where the fires roared in the gypsy camps.

This year we're going back again to see Mischa and his tzigane friends.

Tallulah Bankhead has been on a diet for weeks. She looks lissome and even more glamorous because of it. But that isn't what we wanted to report.

She had been reading "Marie Antoinette" for a couple of hours the other day and decided to stop for a while and weigh herself. On the scales, she was annoyed to find that she hadn't lost any weight, but had gained four pounds.

And it wasn't until afterward that Tallulah discovered why. She went on the scales holding the four-pound volume in her hands!

Acting Skill Goes Begging

At Broadway's first nights, the uninitiated are touched by the alms-asking of a certain beggar. She is the Sarah Bernhardt of the sympathy arousers. Her beaten look and shabby apparel coax many a coin from the crowd.

Even a few of the hard-boiled men-about-town were moved to pity and donations, until one of the skeptics investigated and revealed her racket the other night.

She owns a house and valuable property on Long Island. Nightly, she comes to town on the Long Island Railroad, decently attired. Then she goes to the check room at the Pennsylvania Station, where she extracts package and enters the ladies' room to change to her shabby shawl, tattered garments and don the necessary make-up that gives her an aged appearance. She does all right.

HOW TO ASSURE WAR

Citizens of the United States should not assume responsibility for what happens in Europe unless they are given, in return some voice in managing European affairs.

We were not willing to assume military and moral responsibility for Europe immediately after the war, and we should not assume that responsibility now.

If we desire to assure another war in Europe, let us attempt to guarantee the security of France and Britain. If Hitler doesn't launch a war as a flagrant aggression—and there is a possibility he may not—then he can be depended upon to start shooting in despair.

France and Britain have it within their power today to prevent a European war. Chamberlain knows the solution to the puzzle and was working with constructive results when Roosevelt hurried in after the visit of Anthony Eden to the United States.

Abraham Lincoln said the United States could not exist half slave and half free. The same applies to Europe. The allies have been able to hold uncivilized peoples in subjection, but central Europeans, including the Balkans, the middle-European Slavs, the Teutons and others are of sterner stuff.

We are little concerned over property rights in the areas under controversy. If we go back far enough in history, France belongs to Rome. At another time it was ruled by a German. Once part of Italy was included under German rule, and Spain was ruled by Rome.

Territory, however, is not of as much concern today as access to raw materials. Try to strangle a nation and it will raise up a Hitler and fight.

Peace in Europe is a state of mind—not a Roosevelt dictum.

TECHNOLOGICAL BALKINNESS

A congressional committee has been informed that it is possible for manufacturers to produce a radio tube that will consume much less current, last longer, and be more efficient than those now in use.

But, the committee was told, the tube is not now in production. It was explained that production would be industrially inconvenient.

How many other patents of like potentialities are held, but not put to use?

The interpretation is that if the new tube were to go into production, not so many tubes would be sold in the future. Profits might drop; unemployment might be increased.

We are reminded of a story about development of the steam engine. On one model it was necessary for a valve to be opened by means of pulling a string, and a boy was hired to jerk the string at the proper point in the cycle of operation. The boy discovered that by tying the string to a moving part of the mechanism he could cause the valve to open automatically. He made the proper attachment and was found later playing marbles in the street.

The boy became a case of technological unemployment. But the steam engine has been worth while.

WOMEN'S RIGHTS, AND MEN'S

A Tennessee legislator is mulling over an old idea with a new twist. He plans a $1,000 tax on bachelors, the proceeds to go into a fund for pensioning old maids.

Probably he isn't too serious about it, but just in case he is, it might be pertinent to ask "Why not tax the old maids for the benefit of the bachelors". In this Year of Grace 1939 the picture of lone repining maidens remaining single despite their own yearnings for a "home" and because of the obduracy of selfish bachelors, is pretty well out-dated.

Besides, bachelors are already indirectly taxed, nationally, by the exemption granted married men in the federal income tax.

Proponent of this Tennessee measure is one Lovelace. That makes it possible to paraphrase the famous lines of his earlier namesake:

"I could not love you dear, so much,
Loved I not tax-exemption more"

HAIL THE NEW MASTER!

In New York's Metropolitan Museum of Art, there hangs today the work of a new Master. Make room, Francisco Goya and Peter Paul Rubens, for Walt Disney!

A Disney water-color, one of the original scenes for "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," has been hung, tentatively, in the Met's room of "Recent Accessions." Oddly enough, the choice of the gallery's officials fell not on Mickey Mouse, or Snow White, or Dopey, but on a scene in which vultures are the only living thing.

We hope that Disney stays permanently in the museum. Surely the fact that Disney is a living, producing artist, and that millions have been captivated by his work ought not to bar him from recognition by the elite of the art world. Sometimes, as in the case of Charlie Chaplin, who was loved by the rough-necks long before the intelligentsia tumbled to him, the public isn't such a bad judge after all.

BEWARE THE MARTIANS!

Speaking of the prospect of war—
Mars himself is rushing at the earth at a furious pace, and will approach very close on July 23.

Pretty close, that is. Very close only in the astronomical sense. On July 23 he will come within 36,030,000 miles of the earth. Considering that he is now 176,000,000 miles away, you might call that near approach in July "pretty close" as those things go, out there in inter-stellar space.

That's the time for all those who tumbled out of their houses in terror during the radio "invasion of the Martians" last year to step quietly outside and take a calm look at the red planet whose name is that of the Roman god of war.

Note the date. And don't forget to look under the bed for Martians!

Peter Mallone: Adventurous young journalist.

Petronella: His loyal sister.

Yesterday: Peter is freed and goes to Austria. Aunt Maisie dies, and with her inheritance, Petrel plans to accompany Peter.

Chapter 20

LETTER FROM RUSSIA

Rowdon regarded Petrel for a minute. He grunted. Looking back over the years he had known the two Mallones, he had to admit that, up to the present, she had certainly helped, rather than hindered Peter. Perhaps it might be as well to give her a little sound advice on his behalf? She was more likely to listen than he was. She seemed to have her pretty head well screwed on, this slender, gray-eyed girl, whom he was beginning to like so well. She had common sense, combined with imagination, and emotional control. He had discovered her strength, the day she flew to Germany with such determination.

"Since you seem to be serious, I'll hand you the works, Petrel. You must know some of the tips and golden rules for all journalists." He took out a pencil and an envelope. "I shall write them out for you. See that Peter digests them will you? There are a good many things."

"Like throwing away blotting paper, and never saying important things over telephones?"

"Yes, and managing to stay in a country, writing politely little, instead of being chucked out! For one unvarnished home truth! I know they sound like secret service melodrama. But you'll do well to keep them in mind. By the way, I checked up on your Rene Howard, and the Baroness von Cratz. Interesting couple! Your instinct was right, Petrel. Instincts know how women do it. Now this is confidential, I mind you. You were helped by one of our secret agents!"

"I'm not really surprised." The old girl, Fleur von Cratz was a great beauty in her day. A French actress who married into the Prussian aristocracy. She had a lot of friends. But she lost every penny at the time of the inflation. Rene Howard saw the advantages of her connection, her reputation, and her mental simplicity. He adopted her as his "aunt", uses her friend as a "secret". Lets the world think he is her playboy. Actually he pays her a good salary on the nail every month."

Petrel nodded. "So that was it! I couldn't help liking him. Poor Rene! Surely his secret ought to be guarded very carefully?"

"Ought you and I to know it?" His chief told me. He's a friend of mine. An old friend, Petrel. He let Rene help you, because Peter is my man. But I thought you might like to have the information some time. Rene plays a pretty lonely hand. You may run into him again. He helped you, you may be able to help him. I'm glad you realized, before I explained to you, that his secret mustn't be allowed to stay."

"I may tell Peter, but probably not. Certainly no one else."

"That's right. When will you leave for Vienna?"

"The day after tomorrow. I wonder how long it will be before we move into the cottage?" She sighed, half laughing. "Where do you think, Mr. Rowdon, we're likely to go next? Peter is likely to go to Russia. He speaks Russian. We have some relatives..." Martin Rowdon cocked an amused eye at her.

"He believes in asking for trouble doesn't he? Later on, perhaps? But not just yet. He is inexperienced. It is a very tricky country, seething with conspiracies."

"Keep clear!" It sounds scary. Often, I wonder what my mother's family must have gone through. I have never seen them. My mother's brother and two cousins live near Kiev. Their mother died soon after the war. They wrote about four years ago, saying they were coming to England. We answered. Aunt Maisie offered to

At a wonderful vacation resort two beautiful and winsome young ladies owned speedboats. They were by far the most popular girls for miles around, not only because they owned speedboats and were lovely to look at but because they were also very fond of racing and other sports. Just as a unique gesture, each carried a long streamer from the stern of her boat. One day the two girls, who were natural rivals anyway, established a racing lane for their boats. They went to opposite ends of the lane and turned around, facing each other. At a given signal each gave her boat the gun and the two high-powered boats nearly jumped out of the water as they started roaring down the water lane. A timer found that they took three seconds to pass from the bow to the end of the streamer. The next time they raced side by side, one with a slight head start. This time it took thirty-five seconds for the faster of the two boats to pass the other. Now, if the faster boat travels thirty-eight miles an hour, how fast does the other boat travel?

Answer to Question No. 1

1. In her fine novel, "Madame Claire," Susan Ertz says that few men love with their eyes open and few women love except with their eyes open. She thinks men preserve their blind romantic illusions about women more than women preserve their illusions about men. I imagine so; since women let themselves in for more than men do when they fall in love they probably tend more than men to analyze the situation. But until psychologists study the problem more thoroughly, any answer is a mere opinion.

Answer to Question No. 2

2. No, because when you try to think of nothing or rather of nothingness, you are thinking of the place where nothingness exists. And even if you could succeed in thinking of nothingness, the nothingness would have existence and you would still feel yourself as the thinker who was thinking about nothingness. Even if you don't you are thinking about something.

Answer to Question No. 3

3. I think he would be wiped off the face of the earth in short order by the insects. This is because science has transported plants, animals and human beings all over the earth. As a result many insects have been carried from their native habitats where their natural enemies kept their numbers limited and have given them a chance to multiply. Examples are the potato beetle, gypsy moth and boll weevil. We are now fighting them with airplanes. If man should lose this control the bugs would get the best of him before he could ejaculate Jack Robinson. In fact to my mind the chief danger now of a world war is not that it would merely break down civilization but might lead to man's extinction.

tentment as fate will let him have.

And as the white dome symbolizes that, and rises triumphant over the night as a portent of free society's ultimate triumph so does the Washington monument symbolize the devotion, the endurance and the selflessness on which the nation was founded.

In Memoriam

We can forget those things, and we do forget them much of the time. But they were real. Neither the monument nor the dome would be there if they weren't. What we have today was paid for by other men's sacrifice and built upon their vision of a better order of things; and that shaft that reaches up toward the stars, and challenges the shadows with its light, is a great reminder of it.

Then there is the Lincoln Memorial. It is a huge building, and it contains nothing at all but a statue and a few words carved on its walls; yet its half-light dusk is populous with memories and dreams, and its silence is eloquent with the things the nation said in its hour of agony and crisis. Here is no mere memorial to a war between states; here again is a symbol—a symbol of the toughness, the vision and the compassion which a rough-hewn, close-to-the-soil people found within themselves when they needed them most. The saving grace of the national soul must reside somewhere close to this echoing chamber.

The best place to go to see them is the open space in front of the Lincoln Memorial. To the east the dome; a tall, unadorned shaft which is a constant reminder of the man and the spirit that brought the country to birth. Beyond it the Capitol. All you can see of it is the dome, made small by distance, gleaming as white and insubstantial as the dome of some city imagined but never seen. And behind you are the tall columns of the memorial, with the great statue within softened and humanized by the lights.

The eerie, breath-taking loveliness which the floodlights give the Capitol dome, the Washington monument, and the Lincoln Memorial is very likely a common-place thing.

Yet they are worth traveling the breadth of the continent to see. They summon up the best there is in you. They give your patriotism a new birth and a new understanding. They are America caught with her eyes on the ideal.

P-T. A. Hears Troubadettes and Panel Discussion

Special music by the Troubadette chorus, and a panel discussion on "Playing Square with Our Children" provided a program of outstanding interest for members of the North Central Parent-Teacher association at their February meeting last evening at the school. One hundred or more members were in attendance, with Mrs. W. A. Nichols presiding.

The singers, who performed their musical duties with the artistry that Troubadette audiences have known and appreciated for a number of years, appeared under the direction of Mrs. E. M. Goodsell, with Mrs. Lyle Prescott at the piano. Their numbers were "Sing Again", "The Year's at the Spring", "Let All My Life Be Musical," and "Homing."

The Rev. Howard P. Buxton, B. J. Frazer, and Miss Esther Barton participated in the panel discussion. Mr. Buxton, who is pastor of the Dixon Methodist church, spoke first, giving the introduction.

Mr. Buxton believes that if parents are to play square with their children in relation to religion "we must square up our lives and actions with our professions, and live on Monday what we profess on Sunday." The child, he said, "is a product of his total environment, and of that environment, the church is an important factor. What is good for the child, however, is good for his parents, and if the parent is indifferent in his attitude toward the church, the child probably will become indifferent, also."

Miss Barton, principal of the new Lincoln school, emphasized the benefits derived from conferences between the school and the home in cases where tension exists between the two, came to the defense of the modern youngster.

whom she credits with "a nicer attitude" than formerly, and lauded the Scout and Buddy programs for providing leisure time occupation. "I think children realize more and more that we're trying to develop good citizenship by an all-around process," she stated.

Mr. Frazer, Dixon high school principal, expressed the belief that parents and teachers should be meticulous in being trustworthy as far as the child is concerned." Fundamental lessons are taught, he said, in emphasizing the importance of keeping every promise made to a child. He also raised the question of reorganization of the parents' own time to allow more thought in providing constructive leisure time interests for their children.

Mrs. F. A. Longman, the program chairman, planned the program. Judge Harry Reck of Menard was announced as guest speaker for the next meeting, scheduled for 3:30 P. M., March 8.

Announcement was also made of a meeting of the North Central Parent Pack, to be held at 7 o'clock Monday evening at the school.

Mrs. Scales Has Two Card Parties

Mrs. R. H. Scales concluded a series of two bridge parties yesterday with a Valentine bridge-luncheon at her home. Two tables were set up for contract, after the luncheon, with Mrs. Charles Richards and Mrs. George Bort receiving favors when scores were tallied.

On Monday evening, Mrs. Scales was hosting at a bridge-dinner for eight guests. Miss Edith Slothower and Mrs. Harry Ekins are unwrapping score favors at the close of play.

CHAPTER A C PLANS BENEFIT PARTIES

A series of four benefit dessert-bridge parties have been arranged for Monday afternoon by members of Chapter A. C. P. E. O. Sisterhood. Miss Josephine Nichols, Mrs. A. F. Moore, Mrs. Mark Keller, and Mrs. Gordon Overstreet are opening their homes for groups of varying number.

Mrs. W. H. Coppins is chairman of the committee on arrangements. Assisting her are Mrs. A. H. Lancaster and Mrs. Charles Johnston.

FOOD SALE

Members of the Nurses Alumnae association will sponsor a food sale on Saturday at the Dixon Floral shop on East First street. Mrs. Albert C. Dollmeyer is chairman for the benefit affair, and plans to have her wares on display by 8:30 A. M.

Plans for the sale were discussed at Tuesday evening's meeting of the association at the Nurses Home. Miss Lucille Stauffer presided during the business session, during which eight-hour duty for private nurses was introduced for discussion.

Thursday

Richard Schreiber, baritone, and Eileen Bowman, concert pianist, will be presented in a joint concert in the Dixon high school auditorium this evening for the benefit of a fund which, it is planned, will eventually provide new uniforms for members of the high school band. Thus, the program offers a two-fold pleasure to those who attend—splendid entertainment, as well as well-deserved support for an ambitious and worthy project.

The following paragraph from the Sterling Daily Gazette refers to the artists' appearance at the Coliseum in that city Tuesday evening: "Artists in every sense of the word, Mr. Schreiber and Miss Bowman thoroughly pleased their audience, which was much smaller than it should have been for such fine entertainment. Music of famous composers, arias from light opera and a goodly number of the ever-popular melodies constituted a program which gave pleasing variety to the concert."

Rescuers Uncover Victims of Utah Snow Avalanche

Bingham, Utah, Feb. 9.—(AP)—Rescuers digging into the debris of a snow avalanche today brought out a youth wrapped in his bed blankets and alive after being buried all night.

The body of a girl was found, making two known fatalities in the slide that roared down narrow Bingham canyon last night. One man is still missing.

Physicians said the youth, Dutch in Tomas, 19, may not live. The snow slide that carried away the top of his home and killed his mother and sister swept him along securely wrapped in his bed clothes, accounting for his survival until reached at 9 A. M. today by copper miners who had dug all night.

The body of his mother, Mrs. Stella Tomas, 41, was found last night. His sister, Helen, 11, was found dead at the same time Dutch was rescued.

Missing is Sam March, 42, a boarder in the Tomas home. Searching parties also found the cabin of Hohn Bizack, 55, half a mile above the Tomas home, was carried away in the terrific slide. No trace of Bizack was found and fears were felt that he, too, had been killed.

Discussing Buchanan, Glass said in his seven-page statement:

"It is to be deplored from every point of view that he should have been rejected by the appointive power merely through a desire to 'purge' the junior senator (Byrd) next year and the senior senator of Virginia later if I should live longer than the intriguers hope."

Reports of Opposition

There have been reports that the organization of Gov. James H. Price of Virginia will put a candidate in the field against Byrd in 1940. Glass' term expires in 1943.

The statement by Glass put the next move in the controversy up to the president, who must nominate another for the judgeship.

Glass said he did not recall ever having met Judge Buchanan and declared, "this is no fight for patronage. I do not care a tinker's dam for patronage."

Morgenthau wrote that the profit was made "not as a part of the purpose for which the fund was created but as an incident to its operation."

He explained to a press conference that the $12,000,000 profit was net after paying all expenses of the fund.

Border Clashes Again

Protested by Russians

Moscow, Feb. 9.—(AP)—The Soviet charge d'affaires in Tokyo was instructed today to protest energetically against "the continuing provocative action of Japanese and Manchoukuoans despite warnings delivered to the Japanese government only a few days ago."

The protest was based on clashes occurring along the Soviet-Manchoukuo frontier Monday and Tuesday when, according to Soviet reports, 15 Japanese and Manchoukuoans were killed.

Moscow charged the Japanese were attempting to capture the Soviet island "No. 227" in the Argun river, about 100 miles northeast of Manchuli.

There have been more than 1,000 border incidents in the Far East since the Japanese occupied Manchuria, which is now Manchoukuo. All were followed by protests.

Russians and Japanese Strengthen Garrisons

Tokyo, Feb. 9.—(AP)—Soviet Russia and Japan were reported today to be strengthening their garrisons on the western border of Manchoukuo as fighting along the Argun river entered its second week.

A Domes (Japanese news agency) dispatch from Harbin said Russian troops renewed attacks on the Manchoukuo border garrison at Mengoskili, 60 miles northeast of Manchuli, Monday and Tuesday after a week-end respite.

The dispatch reported Soviet forces were driven back Monday without casualties and were repulsed again Tuesday after a four-hour battle, leaving eight killed and wounded.

Britons Complain

London.—(AP)—British shipowners engaged in the continental trade, complain that merchant fleets of Scandinavian countries contain old vessels built of iron which never seem to wear out.

With modernized engines and cargo space they compete advantageously with other boats.

A list of vessels under 3,000 tons built before 1890 shows that 84 are still on the register. One of them is 74 years old.

STELLE STATES NO DEMOCRAT IS FIGHTING PROBE

Investigation of State Payrolls May Be Legal- ized Tuesday

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 9.—(AP)—While Acting Governor John Stelle declared no Democratic state official would oppose an "honestly conducted" investigation of payrolls, Republican leaders prepared today to renew next week their effort to pass the Branson resolution for a house committee inquiry into all state spending.

The house struck a parliamentary snag yesterday and adjourned for the week, delaying further action on the resolution until Tuesday. Both houses reconvene that day.

The resolution failed of adoption yesterday when only 65 of the 79 Republican house majority bloc voted to suspend the rules for its immediate consideration. Seventy-seven votes were needed.

When the resolution comes up again under regular rules procedure, however, a simple majority of those voting will be sufficient for adoption.

May Seek Joint Probe

Meanwhile several Democratic legislators hinted an attempt might be made over the week end to amend the program, making it a joint house-senate investigation. Rep. Frank J. Ryan of Chicago suggested this before the house executive committee which sanctioned the resolution.

"If you want to be fair on this thing, make it a joint resolution. We have control of the senate and let us share the responsibility," Ryan said.

However, Ryan and other leaders would not comment on whether definite plans for an amendment had been made.

Stelle, who visited the office of Speaker Hugh W. Cross yesterday, declared he did not discuss the resolution. However, he said in comment:

New Bills Introduced
"Any investigation, honestly conducted is proper under our form of government. No state officer will oppose any such investigation."

New bills before the legislature include:

Lottie O'Neill — Appropriates $20,000 for equalization grants for needy high school districts.

Johnson — Removes Madison, Bond and Washington counties from the present third judicial district and Clinton from the fourth to create a new district.

Petlak — Imposes tax of from $5 for one store to $500 for each store.

Lottie O'Neill and Howell — Requires state to pay part of transportation cost of common school pupils.

Baker — Permits county collectors to sell delinquent tax property after two years.

Student Pilot and Passenger Died in Crash

Chicago, Feb. 9.—(AP)—The tangled wreckage of a small training biplane that crashed near the Illinois-Indiana line, killing a student pilot and his passenger, bailed attempts today to discover the cause of the accident.

The victims were Louis Herbold, 25, of Calumet, Ind., the pilot, and Stanley Dziedziak, 22, of East Chicago, Ind.

Rescue workers labored more than an hour yesterday to extricate their bodies from wreckage. The plane went into a shallow dive, lost a wing, and roared about in a 2,000 foot power dive.

The plane struck a frozen farm field south of Lansing. The broken wing fluttered to a spot 250 feet away. F. H. Longeway, an inspector for the Civil Aeronautics Authority, said he was unable to determine the cause of structural failure because of the tangled wreckage.

Four telephone company lines at work on poles nearby said the plane narrowly missed hitting them as it fell.

SCOUTS, PARENTS ATTEND ANNUAL MEET AT OREGON

Three hundred Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts, Cubs, parents and friends attended the first annual city-wide Scout-parent scramble dinner in the coliseum at Oregon last evening. Following the dinner there was a program of community singing, presentations by Girl and Boy Scout leaders, stunts and demonstrations by the girls and boys, a talk by E. A. Rowley, local field executive; Court of Honor at which William Edward Jones was awarded his Life badge, and moving pictures of the Boy Scout camp at Delavan, Wis. The meeting closed with everyone singing taps.

Mrs. E. L. Prior, chairman of the Oregon Girl Scout committee, was general chairman of the affair. She was assisted by all of the other committee members and leaders in both the Girl and Boy Scout groups. Fred Deuth, scouter master of the Troop, was master of ceremonies and led the community singing.

Oregon has two Girl Scout Troops in the grade school with approximately 40 girls registered and a Senior Troop in the high school with about 12 girls. The Boy Scout Troop has 18 boys registered with several more being recruited. The Cub Pack has 35 boys registered in it. The 100 and more boys and girls in the five different units are under the leadership of 24 Girl Scout leaders and 18 Boy Scout and Cub leaders.

The annual campaign for funds with which to carry on the Boy and Girl Scout programs in Oregon will be held February 23, under the leadership of a special committee.

HOPKINS IS GRANDPA

New York, Feb. 9.—(AP)—Secretary of Commerce Harry L. Hopkins is 49 this year — is "grandpa" now. His daughter-in-law, Mrs. Cherry Preisser Hopkins, former stage dancer, gave birth to a six-and-a-half pound daughter in a hospital Tuesday. Mother and child are "doing well," attendants said. Mrs. Hopkins was 19 and her husband, David, a New York advertising man was 22 when they were married at Gretna, La., on June 22, 1937.

Experts said, however, that about 60 per cent of the total oil originally present in the field still would remain under ground after the artificial methods become ineffective — some dozen years hence—and that new methods would have to be introduced if all the oil is recovered.

Science Revives Once Virtually Dry Oil Fields

Harrisburg, Pa., Feb. 9.—(AP)—Like a surgeon reviving a dying patient with a powerful stimulant, science has restored the 68-year-old Bradford oil field—once virtually dry—to ranking as one of the nation's big ten and producer of most of the oil in Pennsylvania.

A report of the state planning board showed today the giant field, stretching over hundreds of acres of northern Pennsylvania and into New York state, is emerging from a period during which production "almost ceased" and now is responsible for about 85 per cent of the state's output.

Second only to the young East Texas field in continuous production area, the Bradford field was discovered in 1862 and first exploited in 1871. Ordinary drilling and pumping methods became "ineffective," the report said, when natural pressure was exhausted.

For a time owners despaired that the field ever could be produced to life. Then science took a hand.

Responding to what the planning board termed an "unusually successful application of artificial water flooding methods," the field began spouting 15,000,000 barrels a year. It had produced a total of 203,600,000 barrels under old methods.

Nearly half of the field's total production of 400,000,000 barrels was brought in by the artificial method, the report stated, thus continuing the field as one of the 10 most fruitful sources of "black gold" in the United States.

Experts said, however, that about 60 per cent of the total oil originally present in the field still would remain under ground after the artificial methods become ineffective — some dozen years hence—and that new methods would have to be introduced if all the oil is recovered.

Building-Loan League President Optimistic

Chicago, Feb. 9.—(AP)—America is "definitely recovering from recession," Clarence T. Rice, president of the United States Building & Loan League, declared in an address yesterday.

Speaking at a meeting of the Illinois Lumber & Material Dealers Association, Rice said business conditions "are much better than they have been in this country for 18 months or so."

"People are becoming more optimistic about the duration of their jobs," Rice told the lumbermen. "The real estate market is improving. Builders are putting up new houses right on through the winter months in many localities for the first time in my memory."

Rice estimated that 300,000 new homes would be built in the United States this year and that about one-third more lumber would be used in home construction than was used last year.

Italy To Throw War Preparation Into High Gear

Rome, Feb. 9.—(AP)—Italy has thrown her war preparations into high gear in answer to British Prime Minister Chamberlain's re-affirmation of French-British solidarity.

The supreme defense commission, which has been in daily session since Monday, met again today with Premier Mussolini presiding to push plans for placing Italy's full resources behind her military needs.

Chamberlain told the British House of Commons Monday that "any threat to vital interests of France, from whatever quarter it comes, must evoke the immediate cooperation of this country."

The foreign office bulletin, Informazione Diplomatica, said Italy would "speed up and perfect" her armaments to balance a "real French-English military alliance."

Virtually all available minerals already have been diverted to war industries, political circles said.

The use of metal in private building construction has been prohibited and private purchasers of automobiles must get on a waiting list because of a shortage of steel for such use, these circles pointed out.

MINORCA ISLAND SURRENDERED TO SPANISH REBELS

Strategic Isle Abandoned by Loyalist Officials Today

London, Feb. 9.—(AP)—Spanish government officials today abandoned Minorca, leaving aboard the British cruiser Devonshire, giving rise to belief that the strategic, well-fortified Mediterranean island had been surrendered to the insurgent regime.

A Reuters (British news agency) dispatch from Burgos, the insurgent capital, quoted insurgent officials as saying that their forces had made "an official landing" on Minorca. Further details were not immediate available.

British foreign office officials said that 450 "refugees" were aboard the Devonshire when she put out to sea from Port Mahon and acknowledged that they probably were government officials and "other persons wanted by the insurgents."

Minorca, which a British armament firm helped fortify, is the only principal island of the Spanish Balearic group which the government has held since early in the war. The insurgents early in the conflict seized Mallorca, from which Italian airplanes have operated, and Ibiza, other islands of the group.

To Forestall Occupation
The 9,750-ton Devonshire put into Port Mahon, Minorca's harbor, Tuesday. This was believed to be a measure to forestall any occupation of the island in which Insurgent Generalissimo Francisco Franco's Italian or German allies would participate.

Aboard was the Count of San Luis, insurgent military governor of Mallorca, bearing a demand for Minorca's immediate surrender. At Port Mahon government negotiators boarded the cruiser.

It was understood she then put out to sea to permit the party to go forward on neutral territory.

Negotiations for safe conduct for the Minorca officials then occurred and it was believed here that the insurgent envoy agreed to permit this in return for surrender of the island.

Britain, France Anxious

Britain and France have been anxious about the fate of Minorca, which lies on their vital Mediterranean communications lines and is regarded by some as more important strategically than Majorca.

British officials said they did not know whether Premier Juan Negrin of the Spanish government was aware of the negotiations but asserted the French government had been informed.

They declared the Spanish insurgents had asked the British government to convey the Count of San Luis to Minorca for the purpose of seeing whether the island wanted to surrender rather than meet a carefully-prepared insurgent attack.

The British understood that the insurgents had a force of 10,000 men and concentrations of warplanes and warships ready to start an attack.

The British government offered to supply all the warships needed to remove the entire population of the island provided the Spanish negotiators agreed this should be done.

British officials insisted there was no question of Britain interfering in the negotiations and they said no British diplomat was aboard while the Count conferred with government authorities.

ITALIANS SUSPICIOUS
Rome, Feb. 9.—(AP)—The authoritative fascist Editor Virginio Gayda today suggested that Britain's assistance in negotiations for surrender of the Spanish island of Minorca might be designed to give Britain and France a foothold there at Italy's expense.

He also declared Britain's "armed coalition" with France left open the possibility of bringing the United States into it.

(Spanish government officials today left Minorca, strongly fortified Balearic island, aboard the British cruiser Devonshire).

The Italian government, meanwhile, announced that new rules governing military service and an increase in the nation's population now made it possible for Italy to mobilize more than 100,000,000 men for active army service in event of war.

Premier Mussolini previously had put the maximum figure at 9,000,000.

"It is evident that Great Britain and France are concerned over keeping Italians away from it," he said. "It is less evident that, with this pretext, they are not attempting themselves to extend a hand and even a foot there."

Gayda said the Minorca incident was "one of a series worthy of the attention" of Italy and Germany, which he declared "are calculating on the existence of an armed coalition between Britain and France the first bloc constituted among the great European powers since the World War, notwithstanding the apparent aversion of democracies to blocs—and they do not exclude the possibility it even may be extended by an understanding with the United States."

An Anglo-French alliance would not influence Germany and Italy to abandon claims for colonial recognition, Gayda said, adding, however, "it is not to be said that the two contrasting solidarities must end in conflict."

Debate Defense Program in Lower House Monday

Washington, Feb. 9.—(AP)—The house rules committee decided today to bring the major part of President Roosevelt's special defense program to the house floor Monday for six hours of debate. The committee acted after hearing Rep. Andrews (R-NY) assert the Army Air Corps has only 1,446 serviceable warplanes.

The program would authorize expansion of the Army Air Corps to 5,500 planes. The house military committee said yesterday they were urgently needed because war may develop in Europe at an early date.

Andrews, senior minority member of the military committee, told the rules group that the Air Corps had only 1,797 planes of all kinds at this time and that 351 of them were obsolete.

In addition to the new planes the legislation would provide more than $23,000,000 for Panama Canal Zone defenses and authorize use of $32,500,000 for "educational orders" to train private industry in production of war materials.

DETROIT TIGERS HAVE NEW POLICY FOR HIRED HANDS

Detroit, Feb. 9.—(AP)—The Detroit Tigers, one of the most liberal major league baseball clubs when it comes to dishing out wages, have adopted a "play or else" policy in regard to this year's rewards for their hired hands.

It's strictly an experiment, revealed when the 1939 contracts were sent out, but the idea is that faded contracts may serve to restore the absent "color" to the team's performance. The management decided to take—and give—a few hints from the numerous drab days at Briggs stadium during 1938 and based the pay rates on last year's performances.

Dr. L. M. T. Stilwell, team physician, offered a ray of hope when he said both Dehner, a center, and Hapac would be able to make the two-game road trip this week, but he added neither might be in condition to play for any length of time against Purdue or Michigan.

Dehner, second high scorer of the conference, was stricken with tonsilitis yesterday. Earlier, Bill Hapac, forward and No. 4 scorer in the conference, had gone out with an attack of influenza. Last week Captain Bill Nisbet was lost through ineligibility.

Meanwhile, Mills moved Guard Jay Wardley to forward with sophomore Johnny Drish, brought in Sophomore Bob O'Neill at center and used Henry Sachs, another sophomore, and Colin Handlon, a junior, at guard.

Cherries May Not Be Ripe But Soon "Cherry Week" Holidays Will Challenge Homemakers

Mrs. Emily Launtz Gives Suggestion For the Season

Even the most hospitable hostess has difficulty in working up enthusiasm about January entertaining. And then, just as everyone has caught up and snatched a second wind, in blusters that red-letter day month, February.

Among the trio of holidays, February 22 is forging steadily to the front as the most popular for entertaining. True, St. Valentine's is the favored time for junior parties—with heart hunts, heart-shaped sandwiches, Cupids and all the rest, but Washington's Birthday is outstanding for dinners, dances, bridge-teas and many other functions.

Joined to the theme of patriotism is also the unquestioned fact that early American hospitality was at its best in the sumptuous dinners at Mount Vernon, over which Martha Washington presided. Good cookery in those days was justly ranked with the arts, and guests at the Mount Vernon table were not too averse to beg for the recipe of some appetizing dish. Although Negro cooks were responsible for the bulk of the actual cooking, Martha Washington is credited for originating many dishes, and improving the flavor and quality of others served in her home.

And, like modern homemakers, she kept a careful cookbook now preserved in the library of the Historical Society of Pennsylvania.

An innovation last year, which doubtless will find more widespread support this season was national "Cherry Week," declared for the week in which Washington's Birthday falls.

Although cherry orchards do look pretty dismal right now, the stores (and some pantry shelves) are well-stocked with plump, colorful cherries that are waiting to flavor pies, puddings and tarts, to say nothing of fruit salads, fruit cup and ice-cream.

Merchants Note Week
Merchants are expected to take note of "Cherry Week" this month with special window displays and special prices on this fruit, for nearly all the varieties of sweet and sour cherries now come in cans. If you have not sampled the goodness of these modern canned cherries, this month is the logical time for testing them—and introducing variety in the menu.

Last season homemakers in some sections recognized "Cherry Week" with pie-baking contests, each cook using her own pet recipe. Girl Scout troops also were represented in similar matches. A Washington's Birthday cherry pie, or cherry tart sale, might suggest a timely source of money-raising for some group.

Although some folks are inclined to pooh-pooh at these special weeks which crop up so frequently during the year, any movement that stimulates business is worth-while, even when it only means marching canned cherries off the grocery store shelf and into the busy kitchen. And when you are shopping for canned sour cherries for pie and sweet cherries for salad and fruit cup,

Last beat the whites of the eggs until frothy and one-half teaspoon cream of tartar and beat until stiff. Fold into the egg and flour mixture and bake in a tube pan for one hour or more in a slow oven. When baked, invert the pan until the cake is cool.

Frost with a boiled icing and decorate with maraschino cherries. Green leaves also may be fashioned by blending butter, confectioners' sugar and green vegetable coloring. Use a pastry tube. Fill the center of the cake with cherry, or peppermint stick ice-cream.

Different Cherry Pie

Pour two cups of hot milk over one cup of bread crumbs and add a few grains of salt. When cool, add two eggs, slightly beaten, two tablespoons of butter and three-fourths cup of sugar. Blend with two cups drained and pitted cherries.

Pour the mixture over the cherries and bake without a top crust in a moderate oven.

Broiled Grapefruit

Cut a large grapefruit in half. Remove seeds and core. Loosen sections by cutting around them with a curved knife, but do not take out the membrane. Dot generously with butter and sprinkle with brown sugar. If desired, add a grating of nutmeg.

Place one or two maraschino cherries in the center of each half, and add enough of the red juice to color. Place under the broiler, cook until nicely browned and serve piping hot.

Molded Chicken Salad

Soften two tablespoons gelatin in two tablespoons cold water. Heat two cups chicken stock, or canned chicken bouillon, and dissolve softened gelatin in it. Add two tablespoons lemon juice and season to taste with salt and pepper.

Put tomatoes through strainer, add horseradish, salt and onion juice. (Grate the onion to extract juice, using only one teaspoon for more delicate flavor.) Pour cold water in bowl and sprinkle gelatin on top of water.

In the bottom of a six-cup mould pour a thin layer of this clear liquid. Arrange a design of strips of pimientos and slices of stuffed olives. Chill slightly. To remaining chicken stock, add three cups chopped (or diced) cooked chicken and two tablespoons minced parsley. When mixture begins to thicken, stir and turn into mold. Chill until firm. Serve with crisp greens, slices of lemon, mayonnaise and tomato sherbet.

Tomato Sherbet

Stir together: Two cups tomato juice; two tablespoons sugar; one-half teaspoon salt; one tablespoon lemon juice; one cup crushed pineapples.

Freeze in refrigerator tray about four hours, stirring twice. Serve with meat, or with jellied fowl, or with crackers and cheese for dessert. (A cooking school recipe.)

Heart-Shaped Canapes

One envelope plain, unflavored gelatin; one-fourth cup cold water; two cups canned or fresh tomatoes; one tablespoon horseradish; one tablespoon onion juice; one teaspoon salt; one-half cup chopped cucumber; one-half cup chopped celery.

Put tomatoes through strainer, add horseradish, salt and onion juice. (Grate the onion to extract juice, using only one teaspoon for more delicate flavor.) Pour cold water in bowl and sprinkle gelatin on top of water.

When the gelatin is thoroughly dissolved, add strained tomatoes and mix well. Cool and when mixture begins to thicken, add cucumber and celery, chopped very fine. Pour into flat pan that has been rinsed in cold water and chill. When firm, unmold and cut out hearts with tin cutter. Serve on crisp crackers.

Heart-shaped portions of this gelatin mixture also may be served as a salad. Use a cutter, or heart-shaped molds.

The Junior Spread

Serve tall glasses of orange-lemonade, garnished with slices of orange and red cherries, with real straws; heart-shaped sandwiches, with cream cheese and pimento filling, assorted heart-shaped cookies, or cookies trimmed with tiny hearts, and an individual pleasure boat for each child:

Ice-cream Boats: One large banana, ice-cream. Select a large, firm banana. Remove section of skin, being careful not to tear the ends of the skin. Take out the fruit and fill the shell with ice-cream. Top with a sail, cut from paper.

Murder Mystery" is Solved Very Easily

Quincy, Ill., Feb. 9—(AP)—A "murder mystery" was solved with comparative ease by Police Chief John A. Conner yesterday.

Conner said a 71-year-old man, who identified himself as G. W. Starr, walked into his office and announced he had killed his son, Steve, 41, in Jackson, Mich.

Tuesday by hitting him on the head with a heavy metal cane.

Jackson police, however, told Chief Conner that Starr's son not only was alive, but denied he was hit. Police said he admitted a quarrel, but said his father had merely had a fit of temper and left home.

Starr said he left Jackson Tuesday and came to Quincy by way of Chicago.

Graham Presents Preview Story of Life In Training Camp of Dodgers

BY DILLON GRAHAM

AP Feature Service Sports Writer

Brooklyn—The daffy Dodgers are always doing the unusual—and generally it's funny.

Two years ago they engaged a Dixie track star to teach their Gowanus Gallopers how to steal bases.

They introduced foot racing and the yellow ball to the major leagues last year.

Their latest maneuver was to hire Artie McGovern, who used to pare the poundage from Babe Ruth's waistline, to get their fat boys and rubber-legged veterans in shape for next season.

So, with the accent now on conditioning, baseball stories from Brooklyn spring training camp may soon read like this:

Clearwater, Fla.—The Dodgers lost 40 pounds today.

After tabulating the weight charts, health Director Artie McGovern, beaming with self-approval, proudly announced the lost poundage.

"The drive to rout weight," he observed, "is progressing nicely. 'I'll have these Dodgers down to sylphs before the season starts."

"They'll be so light they'll breeze along," he prophesied. "There'll not be a stray avoidus-pois on the club."

Just then Babe Phelps sped into view, rushing toward the club-house with all the swiftness and fuss of a delapidated truck puffing up a slick clay hill in low gear.

"Take the Babe there," McGovern suggested.

The reporters refused, with thanks.

"Why, Phelps is moving around so speedily I wouldn't be surprised if he developed into a base thief."

Phelps is the blimp anchored to the turf by oak trunk stems. He caused great consternation by stealing two bases last season. That was a feat the likes of which the oldest Brooklyn inhabitant couldn't recall.

"I'm in great shape," panted the huge catcher as, with tongue hanging out, he lumbered around steadily trying to find a tract big enough to deposit his large frame.

"I'm down to 225," he gasped, and sighed pleadingly: "Artie, I won't be able to get up unless you promise me a steak tonight."

Luke Sewell and Tony Lazzeri stumbled up the clubhouse steps.

"Old Men," shouted McGovern. "You reporters talk about our old men. Look at Luke, look at Tony. Why they don't look a day over 25. They're hopping around like youngsters."

Artie advanced on Luke's 38-year-old middle and applied the tape measure.

"Ah," he smiled. "A debutante would be proud of a waist so small."

As McGovern pranced proudly away, the reporters, dispensing with the formality of secret ballot, decided to stand by the testimony of their own eyes and insist that Sewell and Lazzeri still are old men.

Asked for comment on the conditioning program, the players responded like this:

Van Ling Ling Mungo: "I'd like to commit a murder."

Dolph Camilli: "Carry me back to the Phillips."

Leo Durocher: "Say, guys, lay off me. I'm the manager."

Joe Stripp: "It's worse than the Spanish inquisition."

Harry Lavagetto: "Just give me vanilla."

And poundage wasn't all there. The Dodgers lost today, folks. They had an exhibition game to Cincinnati, 8-2. The Dodgers had a lot of early foot, but they faded in the stretch.

Next week's games will conclude the second round of play in the league when the I. N. U. and Knacks meet in the first game and Bordens and Reynolds in the second.

YOU AND YOUR TAXES

What John Citizen Gets For His Money Is Answer To Whether Taxes Are Burden; The "Take" Grows Steadily

BY MAXWELL S. STEWART
Editor, Public Affairs Committee

One-fifth of the national income, about $13,000,000,000, was collected by federal and local governments as taxes in the 1937-38 fiscal year.

Is this a "crushing burden" of taxation, as many believe? It all depends.

If we paid 10 times as much today for exactly the same services that our parents and grandparents received 40 years ago, we ought to be sore. But that is not the case. The population has increased 75 per cent. The dollar is worth less. Everything costs more. Wages have nearly tripled.

And the government does many things which it did not do 40 years ago. Roads for example. Before autos, little was spent on roads—a little grading once a year by farmers as their tax payments. But today roads are one of our major expenses.

Education costs more than it did in 1900 when there were 700,000 high school pupils in the country. Now there are more than 6,000,000. Unemployment has been a great national problem for only about 10 years. New government boards like the Tariff Commission, Securities and Exchange Commission, Labor Relations Board, have grown up. And of course one of our heaviest expenses is to continue paying for the World War of 20 years ago, which did not figure in grandfather's budget.

Levies on the Increase

The tax "take" is growing. In that $13,000,000,000 tax year of 1937-38, the federal government collected $6,000,000,000. That is $2,000,000,000 more than it collected in the boom year of 1929.

The same increase is shown in state and local taxes. In 1937 the total tax bill of the states was $2,750,000,000. That of the local units $4,400,000,000.

These taxes are a greater total than those of any other country. But few countries have as large a population, and none has as high a national income or standard of living.

British taxes, evenly divided among all her people, would mean $102 apiece, a far heavier burden than our own figure of $100, considering that British wages are lower. In France the average is $75, but that is a heavier burden than either of the others in relation to living standards, and equals one-fourth of the French national income. In Germany the government is estimated to take one-third.

In other words, every modern country collects from one-fifth to one-third of the national income in taxes.

What is done with all this money? What does John Doe get for what he pays over to the government? There lies the answer to the questions "Is it a burden?" "Is it too much?"

What Does Government Do?

We are so used to having the government do certain things that we never think about it. Let's suppose the government stopped doing them tomorrow.

Let's suppose that all highways and streets, bridges, waterways, and buildings built with government money were closed; the army, navy and coast guard disbanded; Congress and the courts abolished; lighthouses and air beacons dimmed; embassies and consulates torn down; schools, asylums and hospitals closed; pensions cut off; police and fire departments discharged; jails opened; garbage collection ended; street lights cut off; playgrounds and food inspection discontinued.

Anyone can agree that the chaos resulting from any such situation would be the end of civilized life as we know it. But those are bare essentials always in evidence. Since 1929 other problems have been tossed into the lap of government, all requiring money for their solution.

After 1929 it became clear that neither private industry, private charity nor local governments could come close to caring for the millions who were without work. Billions of dollars were needed to meet these situations with CWA, FERA, and WPA, and other billions were needed to answer the cries of private business for aid.

SHOWDOWN WITH IN DEMOCRATIC PARTY AWAITED

Neither President Nor Opponents Ready to Capitulate Now

Washington, Feb. 9.—(AP)—President Roosevelt, with sharp persistence, is pressing for a showdown within the Democratic party.

Issue after issue that will test allegiance of Democrats to the chief executive is being pushed upon congress. A record is being written on relief, on appointments, on spending, that must be laid before the country in 1940.

How long the party will withstand the strain of the presidential tug in one direction and a stout congressional leaning on the other is a question puzzling veteran members of congress. They feel either capitulation or a real slugging match must come eventually.

The President, by throwing a new relief demand to congress, by denouncing the senatorial rejection given his appointment of Judge Roberts to the federal bench in Virginia, is showing little disposition to compromise or allow capitulation.

Opponents Resentful

Some of his opponents in congress are not thinking about compromise, either. They are still resentful of the blows he gave a few Democrats in last year's primaries.

Without a party truce which will bring Roosevelt solidly behind the Democratic nominee in 1940, these men are not too optimistic about prospects for a Democratic victory. They are willing to go a long way toward capitulation to get a compromise, but that does not mean they are willing to go all the way.

Nor does it mean Roosevelt will get his relief fund without at least the semblance of a fight, or that the battle over the Virginia judgeship is ended.

May Go Gunning Again

Roosevelt's failure to unseat Democratic senators in the Georgia, South Carolina and Maryland primaries last year is no sure token he will not go gunning for other senators next year. What he does about picking new men for the Virginia judgeship will provide a clearer indication of his future intent.

Many in the Capitol regard the dispute over the nomination of Thomas R. Amle, Wisconsin Progressive, to the Interstate Commerce Commission as one that will provide a clearer test of Presidential support.

Nearly 1,500,000 American farm homes had electric service early in 1939 and the number was increasing at the rate of 200,000 a year.

KANKAKEE COUNTY LAWYER CONFESSES TO FORGING WILL

Chicago, Feb. 9.—(AP)—Goodsel F. Henke, 50, a lawyer of Grant Park, Kankakee county, was under arrest today on a warrant charging forgery and conspiracy to forge a will.

Mal Coghlan, assistant state's attorney, said Henke made a "full statement" admitting he typed and signed a spurious will purporting to be that of Casimir C. Krzysko, who died June 22 in Chicago Heights, Cook county.

Jack Rubens, chief investigator for the Cook county public administrator, said the man named as beneficiary was sought. Rubens said an acquaintance of Krzysko.

Coghlan said Henke also admitted obtaining two ex-convicts to sign as witnesses to the document, and that the ex-convicts, Joseph Kelly and James Russell, also were in custody.

Krzysko, a bachelor, died without a will and his estate case went to probate court. Two months later, Coghlan said, the purposed will appeared, naming a friend of Henke's as principal beneficiary whereby he, Henke, got between $2,500 and $3,500 from the estate.

istrator, said the man named as beneficiary was sought. Rubens said contempt of court proceedings would be instituted in addition to the forgery and conspiracy charges.

New activities and agencies have been created to try to change conditions blamed for this unemployment, farm, and business problem.

More pupils in the schools for longer periods means an increasing cost to cities for education. In cities above 300 people, it comes close to 28 cents of every dollar. Better teachers must be better paid. Adult education is increasing.

The average family need only consider what it would cost to hire a tutor and buy school equipment for its own children, to build its own sewage disposal system, to see that in some cases it gets more from money paid in taxes than from the same money paid out privately.

The vast bulk of the tax income is made possible by the fact that nobody, no matter how poor, escapes entirely. For example, here is the estimated tax contribution of a hypothetical family of a laborer, married, with two children, who earned $1000 a year in New York state:

He pays no income tax, and no taxes at all directly to the federal government. Yet about $30 in federal taxes are shifted to him in the form of higher prices. He pays to the state government only

Boy Scout News

Members of Boy Scout troop No. 89 of the Christian church are planning the largest gathering since the organization of the troop Sunday evening at the church auditorium. The occasion will be the annual observation of Boy Scout week and the farewell address to the troop by Rev. James A. Barnett, pastor of the church, who has been an active supporter of the troop's activities since its organization in 1929.

Scoutmaster Kenneth D. Abbott and the advisory council of the troop have invited the parents of each Scout to be present at this anniversary service. Members of the troop will attend in a body and will appear in full uniform.

Without a party truce which will bring Roosevelt solidly behind the Democratic nominee in 1940, these men are not too optimistic about prospects for a Democratic victory. They are willing to go a long way toward capitulation to get a compromise, but that does not mean they are willing to go all the way.
